Remarks:

Black Art stands for a very special cuvée. The few barrels come from all corners of the warehouses and can only be identified by an experienced master distiller like Jim McEwan or Adam Hannett and artistically mated to a Black Art. For several years, several barrels were under special observation. The final recipe remains one of the distillery's best kept secrets.

Tasting Notes:

It takes some time to grasp the complexity of all flavors, because this whiskey is constantly changing. Again and again new nuances rise and reveal the aromatic secret of this impressive cuvée piece by piece. The fruit notes are reminiscent of cherry, mango, apricot, plum and some orange zest. There is a certain sweetness above everything, like a gentle veil of brown sugar, vanilla and figs in syrup.
